

Self-Certification of Secondary School Completion

Introduction

As stated in the Higher Education Act and the Federal Student Aid Handbook, Volume 1, Chapter 1,

“Though homeschooled students are not considered to have a high school diploma or equivalent, they are eligible to receive Title IV funds if their secondary school education was in a homeschool that state law treats as a home or private school.”

and,

“You may rely on a homeschooled student’s self-certification that they completed secondary school in a homeschool setting.”

As such, a New Hampshire student who has completed Home Education in New Hampshire may self-certify that they have completed secondary school through homeschooling as defined by state law by signing the following statement.

Form

I certify that I have completed secondary school through Home Education as defined by New Hampshire law, RSA 193-A.
