Rationale for Survival Reading: Are You Up To the Challenge?

This game was designed due to the need to have educational materials geared towards the adult learner. In all of the educational magazines that are offered to educators, the games are not quite adult enough to offer to students of adult education. Thus, the result of this game.

In my work as a Reading Specialist at Salem Continuing Education, I am always trying to find new and innovative ways to teach my students how to read, whether it is in decoding or increasing comprehension skills.

This game consists of sentences built around Dolch sight words, everyday words such as family words, days of the week, months of the year, colors, household words, homophones, community words, and much more.

I have used this game as it was being developed with beginning readers and also more skilled readers, and it was met with success. From my experience, students like to do hands-on activities, and they like to do different things. For me, this was a fun activity to do when it was close to vacation, a holiday, or when attendance was down for the evening.

The goal of the game is for students to engage with each other in learning. An offshoot to this game was that it built community spirit within the class. More advanced readers were willing to help struggling readers, and a sense of friendly competition in winning the game made for many laughs within the class.

I hope that you enjoy the game, and that your students are up to the challenge!

Making the Game

If you are choosing to make the game, here are my suggestions on how to do it. Adult Education has a copy of the game, so it is my suggestion that you just make a photocopy of it to save yourself some time and money, but if you want to customize the game, enjoy being creative.

1. Get an 11x17 piece of paper.
2. Copy the green boxes graphic on to full sheet sticky label paper. I bought the sticky label paper at Staples. It has to be the full sheet labels and not the kind that would be used to make address or name labels.
3. Place the copied green boxes graphic directly onto the 11x17 piece of paper.
4. Copy “Survival Reading-Are You Up to the Challenge” onto full sheet sticky label paper.
5. Place the header at the top of the 11x17 piece of paper. Decorate the title of the game with the two stop signs, one on each side of the title.
6. Place “start” at the bottom left hand corner of the game. Decorate the start box with the graphic of the runner.
7. Place “finish” at the top right hand corner of the game. Decorate the finish box with the graphic of the first place ribbon.
8. Choose the places that you want the students to learn about within each box. One green box per location. You will have more than you need. I wrote up more than needed so there would be flexibility in choosing to make the game.
9. Place the arrows within the boxes showing the direction to go. I placed one right at the start pointing in the right direction. When I got to the end of the row, I placed an arrow pointing up, then one to the left. Then I placed an arrow pointing to the right. I followed this process throughout the game so the player knows exactly which direction to go.

10. Print out the directions that say, “lose a turn”, “roll again”, “go back 1 space”, “switch places with another player”, “go ahead 2 spaces”, “go back to start”, “go to finish” on sticky label paper.
11. Place the sticky labels on index cards. I chose to put them on sticky label paper and then index cards to make them all a uniform size.
12. Print out the remaining pages on sticky label paper and then place them on index cards. Again, I chose to do it in this manner so they are a uniform size.
13. Print out the directions to the game.
14. Make sure you have dice.
15. Make sure you have playing pieces, such as buttons, coins, or pieces of paper.
16. Have fun!

Haul the tables into the hall for the party.

Did you hear me call for you to come here?

Our time to arrive is at the seven o'clock hour.

I sent you one cent in the mail.

Please be a dear, and don't hurt the deer.

My bills that are due are full of dew because I left them out in the yard,
rather than the mailbox.

The fare to enter the fair
is ten dollars per adult.

Four eggs for breakfast
is a lot of food.

Does a hare have hair?

Did you know that "no"
means no?

Can only males deliver
the mail?

That horse's mane was the main attraction at the state fair.

Can you meet me at the meat market on Saturday afternoon?

The hockey team won
the game with only one second left to play.

You can find the pail
near the pale blue fence.

Did you pick a pair of pears for lunch?

The plane flew over the plain fields of wheat.

The role of the baker in the morning is to bake rolls.

The sailboat is on sale.

Have you ever seen
such a terrible crime
scene?

Did you see the sea at the height of the storm?

So, can you sew?

Do you know that the sum of some numbers
can be negative?

Please don't stare at me
while you are going down the stairs.

Did you ever hear the tale about the mouse
who lost his tail?

I can't believe that you threw the ball through our neighbors window!

Will the two of you go to the store and get some ham, cheese, and eggs, and ice cream too!

Where do you get the clothes that you wear?

Would you please go get some wood for the fireplace?

America is one of the best countries to live in.

A student should learn how to study.

Mother found the answer that she was looking for.

That animal is too large to be in this house.

Can we play a different game?

Military families have to change their homes many times.

Would you please move the picture again?

“Hand off the letter to me”, demanded my sister!

Is that you?

He was all for it.

They have the ball first.

“When can you go there”, said the man at the desk?

“Use each of these words in a sentence”, said the teacher.

Words make up sentences.

Have you eaten
breakfast?

She and I got all the food from the deli for the party.

I cannot be at this party
with you.

Did you go in or on the boat?

We were going to the game, but we changed our minds.

By the way, what are we doing tonight?

His one goal in life
is to be a doctor.

As for me and my cat, we love to relax.

Do you like mashed potatoes or French fries?

Your friend went through so much before finding her true love.

Which box can she choose from?

“Get off of the couch”,
yelled the Dad.

The chef can make
some of these tasty treats for your party.

An apple a day
keeps the doctor
away.

How will they know
if their time is up?

What did you do
about your other problem?

There are two outs
in this inning.

Then they went into the haunted house to take a look.

Do you like him?

“So, what will you do with them?” asked the parents of the teenager.

Time has a way of moving quickly when you don't want it to.

“Two more invitations to write and I am all done,”

said the bride to groom.

Go and see what number we have at the deli.

There is no way that people could live on the moon.

The water at Hampton Beach is cold.

My first call of the day was to a grumpy
man.

Is oil more expensive than gas?

You can find a pot of gold a long way down
the rainbow.

Have you ever been to Paris?

what people wear to work.

Who can it be now?

Give me back my toy!

Did you get to come home last night and rest?

We live in one of the most very interesting states in the country.

What made that sound?

One thing after another, and another.

Did you say that the day may be a good one to make hay?

Our name was just called to win the prize.

The new girl got the part in the play over the usual one.

There goes a good man.

Take only a little bit of that spicy sauce.

Think only kind thoughts, and say only kind words.

Do you know that the work place has changed over the years in regards to Where can I get some help?

That line curves too much to the right.

What a mean, old lady
you are!
Tell that boy to follow
me.

Same old thing, day in
and day out.

Anyone want to show
me how to work this machine?

The dog also came around the bend of the road.

“Form three small groups”, the teacher
said.

Set the table with the large plates.

I will put an end to this nonsense once and for all!

Does anyone know how to bake an apple pie?

Another job well done!

Must you take such a big glass of milk?

Why must you ask where
the men went?

“Try to be kind to your little brother”, the father
said.

It is your turn because those are the rules.

We had so much rain this spring.

Even though you need some help, you can still try to do some of the work yourself.

Read as many different kinds of books as you can.

This land looks very different to us.

Rules for Survival Reading-Are You Up to the Challenge?

How to Play: Roll one dice. The number that you roll is the number of spaces that you move. Once you have done that, you must roll again. The number that you rolled this time will be the number of cards that you pick from the deck. You must read each card that you picked correctly to keep the card. If you misread the card, you must put the card back into the bottom of the deck.

Winning the game: you must get to "Finish", and you must have at least 20 cards that you have read correctly. If you do not have 20 cards read correctly, you must keep rolling the dice when it is your turn to gather the amount of cards that you need to win the game. (The number of cards can change depending upon the number of players, and also the level of reading.) Once you have read at least 20, or the number that is determined before the game begins, and get to "finish" you will be declared the winner!

Material covered in the game: days of week, months of year, number words, family member words, colors, commonly used words in everyday life, homonyms and homophones, 100 most misspelled words, Dolch sight words, and the 200 Words You Need to Know (Teacher Resource Book by Kathy Sammis)

Items Needed for the Game: die, playing cards also known as the reading cards, board game, playing pieces, which can be buttons, coins, or pieces of paper.

Rules for Reading~opoly, a Game About Survival Reading For Everyday Life

How to Play: Roll one dice. The number that you roll is the number of spaces that you move. Once you have done that, you must roll again. The number that you rolled this time will be the number of cards that you pick from the deck. You must read each card that you picked correctly to keep the card. If you misread the card, you must put the card back into the bottom of the deck.

Winning the game: you must get to “The End” of the game, and you must have at least 20 cards that you have read correctly. If you do not have 20 cards read correctly, you must keep rolling the dice when it is your turn to gather the amount of cards that you need to win the game. (The number of cards can change depending upon the number of players, and also the level of reading.) You will have read a “monopoly” of the cards and will be declared the winner!

Material covered in the game: days of week, months of year, number words, family member words, colors, commonly used words in everyday life, homonyms and homophones, 100 most misspelled words, Dolch sight words, and the 200 Words You Need to Know (Teacher Resource Book by Kathy Sammis)

Items Needed for the Game: die, playing cards on either note cards or cut out paper, board game, playing pieces or coins
