Title III, Part A State-Level Activity Assurances
 Promising Practices 2019-20

The 2019 WIDA Annual Conference: Teaching for Equity in a Multilingual World which is being held from October 15 through 18, 2019, is an opportunity for New Hampshire Title III project leaders to learn from national colleagues and to share promising practices being carried out in our NH school districts.

The NH Title III Project Managers have nominated representatives to attend. Each representative will be required to lead a Title III breakout session at the Title III Promising Practices Conference on December 2, 2019, at the New Hampshire Department of Education in Concord, N.H. In the event that this conference is rescheduled or postponed other arrangements to present will be made.

Attending and reporting back on promising practices in one of these areas will be the priority.

- Enhancing the EL classroom through content-based instruction, project-based learning, co-teaching and collaboration, technology and software, or others practices;
- Improving teacher development through learning opportunities in culturally responsive practices, identifying and serving ELs with special needs, coaching and collaboration, leadership development or others practices;
- Improving family and community engagement through welcoming new comers programs, family literacy events, multicultural projects, cultural support systems or others practices.
